Anthony has more than 20 years of institutional practice before setting up ASC Clinic for Women at Gleneagles Hospital, Singapore.

He received his Medical Degree from NUS (National University of Singapore) and subsequently qualified as a specialist Obstetrician & Gynaecologist in 2000 by earning his Masters Degree from NUS. He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Obstetricians & Gynaecologists in United Kingdom as well as the Academy of Medicine, Singapore.

Anthony was awarded the Singapore Government Scholarship for Advanced Laparoscopic Surgery in 2003. He spent a year in Sydney Australia mastering the art of Laparoscopic Pelvic Floor Reconstruction and Severe Endometriosis Surgery.

Following his return, Anthony became the Director of Minimally Invasive Surgery Centre. He spearheaded the KK Laparoscopic Fellowship Training Program, pioneered the Laparoscopic Suturing Workshop, established the KK Endometriosis Clinic and implemented a validated MTX Treatment Protocol for Ectopic Pregnancy.

Anthony's passion for teaching earned him the KK Hospital Outstanding Clinical Teacher Award in 2007. His reputation as a dedicated laparoscopic trainer attracted specialists from Malaysia, Thailand, Brunei, Indonesia, Philippines and the region to train with him. In 2009 he was appointed Visiting Professor for Laparoscopy to University of Philippines.

Anthony is the first gynaecologist in Singapore to perform Single Incision Laparoscopy for Hysterectomy and Myomectomy. He is among the few in the region to have done more than 400 such cases and is frequently invited to teach and demonstrate Single Incision Laparoscopic Surgery.

He is often sought for a second or even third opinion on complex gynaecological issues. Hence after 20 years of obstetrics practice, Anthony has stopped delivering babies and is now focused on giving his best to helping women with their gynaecological health which may involve the need for complex gynaecological surgery.
